HOW TO SAVE "GAS"

That the average driver of an automobile is wasteful of gasoline has again been demonstrated by an automobile economy contest, this time from Los Angeles to Sun Valley, Ida., a distance of more than 1,400 miles over all sorts of driving conditions, automobile industry spokesmen say.

With entries in the contest representing most of the leading makes of cars, the overall gasoline mileage was 50 per cent higher than the average driver obtains.
Cars were strictly stock models,
but tuned up to perfection.

What accounted for the increased gasoline mileage, those who participated in the contest agree, was driving technique. No lightning getaways were indulged in, cars were shifted into high at low speeds, and when it became necessary to slow up or stop this was done mainly by engine instead of foot braking.

Most wasteful practices commonly employed by automobile drivers are rapid acceleration and hard braking, experts agree. If pickup is gradual and slowdown ditto, there is a major saving in amount of gasoline consumed.

Great advances have been made by the automobile industry in recent years in designing automobiles that are more economical to operate and the oil industry has contributed to this trend by improvements in gasoline and lubricants. But no motorcar will deliver more than two-thirds of the gasoline mileage possible unless the man at the wheel knows how to drive economically, at the latest automobile economy contest has again demonstrated.

PACKAGING

Attractive packaging, at which Americans excel, is recognized as an important factor in modern salesmanship. This practice has gone so far that sometimes the wrapping for an Easter or Christmas present costs as much as the present itself.

This, of course, is where individual taste is exercised. Some shops charge extra for gift wrapping, which is understandable in view of the fact that design and redesign of products and packages costs American industry more than $100,000,000 a year.
That is on the order of an industrial designer, Walter P. Margulies of New York.

Mr. Margulies points out that the reason design looms so large in modern merchandising is in the change in selling patterns, which leave the customer alone with what he or she wants to purchase. Asserts this designer:

"The expansion of the super market vending method and the accent on eye-appealing impulse sales means that products must bear a heavier load in selling. The sales talk is losing its potency, mainly because there are fewer salespeople to make it."

Some sales talks are pleasant, some not. It is certain that of two products of equal value and utility, the one with the more attractive design and packaging will have a great sales advantage.

Today's Quiet Moment

Selected by the Rev. E. Clarendon Hyde, Vicar Grace Episcopal Church, Hulmeville

Be sober, be watchful. Your adversary, the devil, prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour. Resist him, firm in your faith, knowing that the same experience of suffering is required of your brotherhood throughout the world. And after you have suffered a little while, the God of all grace, who has called you to His eternal glory in Christ, will Himself restore, establish, and strengthen you. To Him be the dominion for ever and ever. Amen. I Peter V 8-11 (Revised Standard Version).

respect, since the pre-Civil war discussions found two of the ablest and most accomplished spokesmen of the country personally taking part, whereas the T-V "clinic" was strictly a second-team performance. The Democrats lacked the presence of Truman, Acheson, Marshall, or any other first-string representative, while on the Republican side, neither of the two main contenders, Taft or Eisenhower, was present.

General Eisenhower was represented, in one sense, though not in another. Paul G. Hoffman, former Economic Cooperation Administrator, appeared on Eisenhower's behalf, but made it clear every time he spoke that what he said was not to be considered as committing the General in any way.

Others who took part on the alleged Republican side were Stassen and Warren, who had drifted farther and farther in the New Deal-Internationalist direction, until any resemblance to the Republican Party of the Lincoln-to-McKinley period is strictly coincidental.

The Democrats present were Harriman, Kerr and Kefauver, none of whom represents the White House-CIO combine which has been running the domestic front under Truman, or the Acheson-Marshall school which has been in charge of foreign affairs.

Two main questions were, as the moderator termed it, "debated" — that is to say, six separate statements were read with varying degrees of skill; first, on the subject of corruption in Federal government, and second, whether to increase or decrease foreign aid.

On the matter of corruption, several different versions were supplied of the tricky theory that "the man who offers a bribe is just as guilty as the man who takes it," a bit of perverted logic with which Mr. Truman and his confederates are trying to shove blame for bribery and corruption at Washington off their own shoulders and onto the laps of the American people.

A number of ingenious schemes were offered by which it was proposed painlessly to purify the government without the need for sending crooks to jail.

Not one of the six speakers talked with any serious realism about the actual situation in our national government, where the scion of a crooked political gang has put his cronies in posts of great temptation, and then stubbornly protected them from all criticism or prosecution when they proved unequal to the assignments.

As to foreign aid, the attitude fitted the hour of the television show, which had replaced one of the betterknown "give-away" programs. The giveaway spirit of international diplomacy was applauded on all sides.

The exact question was whether to reduce the present level of foreign giveaways, and the various presidential hopefuls shaded their answers on the basis of whether to give all Mr. Truman has asked, or only most of it; but not a single breath of fresh air was let into the discussion by the suggestion that maybe after the handing out of billions of badly-needed American dollars without any progress towards world peace, it is time to take inventory of the idea itself, and see if something better is not available.

There was, in fact, only one way under the sun by which a debate could have been produced on the program, and that would have been to bring in the absent Senator Taft. He could have taken on any of the speakers, and probably backed him promptly off the boards.

But that wasn't the idea. The concept back of the program was to dress "internationalism" up in a "pro" and a "con" disguise, and try to sell it to the public, debate-wise, on a "heads we win, tails you lose" basis.

surances" that its workers would not walk out again. Several other companies were expected to follow the lead of Big Steel. Mr. Truman, hopeful of restoring full steel output as quickly as possible, will try to settle the wage dispute at a White House conference today to which company and union heads have been invited.

As both the White House and the steel companies took their dispute over the President's right to seize the steel plants to the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, in another 5-to-4 opinion, ruled that there was "at least a serious question as to the correctness" of the decision that seizure was illegal.

Price Stabilization Director Arnall renewed his opposition to giving the steel companies an increase of more than $3 a ton in the price of steel to compensate them for higher labor costs.

ELLIOTT PITCHES BENSALAM HIGH TO THIRD WIN

Three hit pitching by Ron Elliott gave Bensalem Township its third win of the Lower Bucks County League yesterday afternoon as the Owls were victorious over Delhaas High, 7-2. Bensalem has been beaten but once in league competition.

Elliott gave up a hit in the initial frame and then held Delhaas hitless until it bunched two in the seventh for its lone marker of the contest. The Bensalem twirler had six strikeouts.

Bensalem had 12 hits with Russ Struble getting a pair, including a home run in the sixth. Crowthers had a triple and single. On his triple, he would have had a homer but he stumbled over third.

Don Heany hit a long drive for Bensalem in his first appearance at the plate in an Owl's uniform. The sophomore circled the bases, scoring Jim Welsh ahead of him, but was declared out for failing to touch third base. He was credited with a two-bagger.

BRISTOL RALLIES IN LAST FRAME; BULLDOGS LOSE

MORRISVILLE, May 3 — Bristol rallied in the last two innings to register a Lower Bucks County League triumph over Morrisville High on the Robert Morris field yesterday. Final score was 7-2. It was Bristol's third win against two losses as the Warriors were beaten by Pennsbury 9-7, earlier in the week.

Norman Slaymaker went the distance for Coach Ben Watson's team and allowed Morrisville five hits. Two of these, a home run and triple, went to Lebegern. Slaymaker fanned nine batters, including the side in the sixth. The Bristol twirler had good control, giving up two passes. Slaymaker helped his own cause by singling in the sixth and seventh, the Bristol rally frames.

Ercole Petrizzi whanged out a triple in the third and single in the sixth.

Risk of Getting Cancer is 20 Percent

healthy people. One out of a hundred, as a general rule, turns out to have cancer.

There are times when breast cancer seems to run in families, but science is positive cancer is not inherited. What is inherited is a predisposition to the disease, but that is not so formidable a statement as it seems. Doctors think a great majority of people are pre-disposed to cancer — that is, they can get the disease.

Given that pre-disposition, however, there is something that has to touch off the disease itself. Something has to start it going.

That something can be an irritant. Science explains this in an interesting way. An irritation is, in effect, a microscopic bruise, when the skin is cut or bruised, normal cells grow in to form new tissue, replacing the injured tissue.

But cancer cells, it is known, grow faster than normal cells. Thus, when the chance for growth presents itself, that may be all the cancer cells need.

Science likes to look back into childhood to see whether the diseases of infancy or childhood play any part in the development of cancer later on. But sometimes — indeed, often — cancer takes from twenty to fifty years to grow where it can be noticed. It is hard to trace back that many years and figure out what started it.

A survey is being taken among thousands of people to see whether there is any relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. Lip cancer has been found among pipe smokers, but it also has been found among non-smokers.

Some forms of cancer may be attributed to the simple human process of just plain growing old. That may be why there seem to be more cases of cancer today than in former years — because there are more old people today. They live longer, and thus have more time in which to contract the disease.

It can be assumed, however, that the cause of cancer — and thence means for its prevention — will be found. In men, the most important area of the body, for purposes of cancer research, can be found in the vicinity of the hip pocket, where the wallet is.

The fight against cancer can be shortened in direct ratio to how many people join the fight against it. The more money, the more people. Funds can be directed to any official local cancer organization, or national bodies like the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund and American Cancer Society.

Somebody's odd dollar bill is going to knock cancer out.

females were 18. Only one bridegroom-to-be was 19; while eleven of the brides were 19. The 20 age group claimed eight men and six women.

Eleven of the male applicants and fourteen of the females had previously been married and were divorced. There were eight widowers and six widows among the group taking a second trip to the altar.

Applicants came from as far away as California and Indiana.

The youngest couple was a 17 year old serviceman from Forest Grove, who applied for a license to wed a 16 year old Rushland girl. Another young couple came from Doylestown; the fellow being 17 and the girl 18. Quakertown sent a couple, both of whom were 18 years old.

There was only one couple claiming the title for oldest couple of the month. They came from Upper Makefield; the bridegroom was 69 year old and married a woman 67.

Lower Bucks — Bristol residents are urged to try to make this area campaign the finest that has yet been held. The date of the "clean-up" drive is May 3 to 17th. The local Chamber of Commerce has entered the Lower Bucks — Bristol area in the National Contest sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce, for which awards are made by them to the communities in the United States conducting the best campaign and achieving the finest results. As in past years, local awards will be made by the Lower Bucks — Bristol Chamber of Commerce to streets doing the best job of making their area look well. Francis J. O'Boyle and Kenneth Anderson have been the chairmen for this campaign and they have received the able assistance of many committee members, and the newly organized Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Cook is Found Guilty of Murder in Second Degree

the night of Sept. 1, 1950, found Mrs. Roberta Mary Cook, wife of the defendant, crouched in the car of David.

Awgils opened the car door and on the front seat, he said, sitting on the right hand side and trying to crouch below the exposure of the glass on the left-hand side of the vehicle, was Mrs. Cook, mother of four children, and wife of the defendant. The Cooks had three children and the fourth was born since the tragedy at the plant.

Harry C. Crosby, 39, McKinley st., Bristol, a friend of the defendant, testified that Cook told him he was having trouble with his wife. "He told me that he was to meet the other man and his wife and that he would see me later that night."

After the shooting incident at the plant, Crosby said Cook went back to Sottung's Cafe, Croydon and said: "The 'little trouble' is over," and we were talking when the sirens sounded and I asked Cook "Ed, is that for you?"

Crosby testified "Cook came to my house and asked me to take a little ride with him. He had a coupe outside and asked me if I had a gun. I went out with Cook and we drove to Mill street where we stopped. Cook went into some building. He told me he was going to buy a gun. He returned and told me he couldn't get a gun there unless he waited. We left and went somewhere on Radcliffe street where he left the car again. After several minutes Cook came back to the car and we drove home. He asked me to lend him some clothes. He washed up and I gave him a shirt and sport coat."

"We had coffee together and he took me to a doctor about eight o'clock. We used the same car.

Later I met him and we had a drink together at the Bristol House on Mill street.

"Cook got a gun, which he borrowed from someone. He did not tell me from whom he got the gun. He showed the gun to me and might have said, 'I got a gun.' It was an automatic pistol."

An automatic pistol, offered by the Commonwealth, resembled the weapon Cook got that afternoon, the witness said.

"We went to another place, Keller's, and had another drink. I had another beer."

"We walked down back Mill street and went to another bar and I had another beer. I can't remember whether Cook drank his drink or not."

"We went to Sottung's cafe, near Croydon. Sottung's Cafe is several minutes drive from the Seaboard Container Corp. plant."

"I never saw the gun after Cook showed it to me and we never discussed the gun."

"Did you make any effort to procure bullets?" asked District Attorney Willard S. Curtin.

"Cook ordered a whiskey at Sottung's. He told me he had a little trouble with his wife and another man. I never knew the man's name. He wanted to meet me after the 'little trouble' was over. He told me he was to meet his wife and the other man."

"About 10.30 he came back and we went to the other end of the bar. When I heard a siren, I asked him, 'Is that for you, Ed?'"

"I guess it is," Cook answered. "We walked out and got into the car and he said he would take me home. I asked him 'Did you shoot him?' I just can't remember what was said. I took the gun and put it under the seat. The gun was in Cook's coat pocket. I think Cook was wearing the coat at the time."

"He mentioned something about not taking the gun and I said 'It can't hurt me.' He was going to take me home and I said 'I will stay with you.' He said something about getting drunk before giving himself up."

"We went to several taprooms after leaving Sottung's and one which was in New Jersey. "I think he said something about not hurting the fellow much. He got sleepy and I drove home. I made a phone call to his wife."

"Cook was asleep in the car and I drove to a fire house. Leonard Dennis and Laurence Huffel were at the fire house. Dennis is a brother-in-law of Cook. We went to the police station in the municipal building. I took the coat and gun in the pocket and handed it over to the police. I put the gun back into the coat pocket."

"Cook walked with me into the police station," said Crosby.

"I never saw Wilfred David in my life. I knew Mrs. Cook, but I did not see either of them that night."

Minot J. Hill, Jr., 227 Mill street, Bristol, testified the pistol looked very much like the one he gave to Mr. Cook. "Cook said he wanted to enter some shooting match and he needed a pistol. I knew there was a pistol in my father's desk. I knew it was an automatic pistol and it was not loaded."

Dr. William S. Wadsworth, coroner's physician of Philadelphia, said: "There were a great many infections, following an injury to the spinal cord, on Wilfred David's body. Death was caused by result of injuries to the spinal cord."

Joseph W. Verdi, 26, Seaboard Container plant shipper, who was working Sept. 1, said David was the night superintendent. "Cook approached me about 10.15 that night and asked if I knew David. I told Cook he wasn't allowed in the plant and would have to get out. Later I saw the ambulance pull away."

Joseph Kelly, 40, Bridgeton, N. J., truck driver, testified he saw Cook at the Seaboard Container plant. "I heard a noise and the other driver said it looks as if a man has been shot. I saw a man lying inside the door of the loading platform. Cook passed me coming down the steps. Cook picked up David's head and said something to him. Then Cook walked away and headed over a grass plot and several minutes later a car shot out to the main road."

Joseph Menna, 36, Phila., foreman shipper, S. C. Co., said he ordered Cook to leave the premises a week previous to Sept. 1, 1950. "On Sept. 1 Cook came into my office and told me David wanted to see me outside. It is very important," said Menna.

"I ran down and put my hand under David's head and he said, 'I'm sick, please get me a doctor.' He kept repeating, 'I can't move my legs, I'm sick.'"

Eli H. Fradkin, plant superintendent, said he was in the office when Cook came in and asked for Menna.

"Mrs. Cook worked there too but I don't know how long. I think she quit a week earlier."

Vincent Farragalli, Bristol policeman, who was on night duty at Bristol police headquarters, testified he saw Cook at 5.15 Sept. 2. "Mr. Crosby, who had a jacket in his hand, and Cook came into the police headquarters. Crosby said the gun is in the pocket."

Chief of Police Joseph O. Seader, Bristol township, also saw Cook Sept. 2 at 5.30 in the morning, and interviewed Crosby.

Trooper Emil Awgils, Langhorne, Penna. State Police, testified Charles Cohen gave him a spent cartridge case at the scene of the shooting. There were seven cartridges in the clip of the automatic. Six were offered in evidence. One was in the chamber.

"Cook told me July 23 it was a foolish thing to shoot David."

Trooper Awgils said. The car was owned by Sadie Penton, of Bristol, an aunt of the defendant.

Chief County Detective Fred H. Kohler testified about receiving the spent cartridge and slug.

Trooper Edward T. Miles, of the State Police, aided in the investigation.

Cpl. Charles A. Jones, Langhorne State Police, identified the slug taken from David's body.

Assistant County Detective William L. Stackhouse testified Dr. Martin Cassett, Gloucester, N. J., refused to attend because of advice of his attorney. Charles T. Cohen did not attend court either.

Lieut. Lewis M. Whitecotton, of the State Police crime laboratory, ballistics expert, described the pistol as auto-loading rather than automatic since it fires only when the trigger is pulled each time. It is a .32 calibre. He testified the slug, or pellet, found in David's body was fired from the pistol found on Cook. It has a firing capacity of nine bullets.

Rudolph David, Gloucester City, N. J., father of Wilfred David, taking the witness stand Thursday morning, as the first witness, said he took care of his son in an apartment in the same building.

"My son returned to Jefferson Hospital, Feb. 16, 1951, because we could no longer take care of him."

COOK IS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN SECOND DEGREE

With Recommendation For Leniency; Maximum Term Is Twenty Years

DEFENDANT FAINTS

Had Requested That His Mother Be Asked to Leave The Court Room

DOYLESTOWN, May 3 —

A jury returning to the court room where Judge Satterthwaite was presiding at 1:20 this morning, returned a verdict of "second degree murder, with recommendation for leniency" in the case of Edward John Cook, 39, of 3400 Hartel st., Philadelphia. Cook, formerly of Bristol, was charged with the murder of Wilford David, 40, Gloucester, N. J., at the plant of Seaboard Container Corp., Bristol twp.

Upon hearing the verdict, Cook collapsed, his head resting in his hands on the table.

Immediately John L. Kileyne, Esq., Bristol, attorney for Cook, made a motion for a new trial. Bail was doubled to $20,000, according to custom, and Cook was remanded to the Bucks County jail, here.

The maximum imprisonment in a second degree murder verdict is 20 years imprisonment.

The jury returned for the first time at 10:33 last evening, asking for instruction concerning the difference between murder in the second degree and voluntary manslaughter. At 1:07 a. m. the jury returned for the second time for instruction. The foreman, William R. Bean, Jr., of Argus, the youngest member of the jury, asked the judge if it was possible to bring in a verdict of second degree murder with recommendation for leniency. When Judge Satterthwaite answered in the affirmative, Bean replied "That's our verdict," being unaware that it was necessary for the jury to again discuss the matter. The jury left the court room for a few minutes, returning at 1:20 to formally announce the verdict.

Cook's mother was in court during the trial yesterday. When Cook took the witness stand he stopped testifying to ask if his mother could be requested to leave the court room. She spent the remainder of the day in the corridor, and was there when the verdict was returned early this morning. Cook's wife has not been in court.

It was testified that a state trooper, Emil Awgils, Langhorne barracks, while investigating the shooting at the Seaboard plant on

RISK OF GETTING CANCER IS 20 PERCENT

Some Workers in Certain Trades Subject to Certain Forms of Disease

DOLLARS KNOCK IT

At the present rate, one out of every five Americans now living will be hit by cancer. Just which persons and why are not known. But many facts which are known are reasonably certain to fall into a complete pattern under the assault of scientists backed by research funds. In this, the concluding article of a series, the clues gathered so far are outlined.

"The Cancer Fighters"

—ARTICLE SIX—
By Charles Einstein

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, May 3 (INS)—Statistics are interesting except when they're talking about happens to you. So it may or may not be interesting to know you run about a 20 per cent risk of getting cancer.

One out of five living Americans will be hit by the disease. Who, or why, isn't really known. If scientists knew those things, it might be an easy step to prevent the disease.

They know things like this: That some kinds of dye workers often develop bladder cancer, that uranium miners often get lung cancer, that people like farmers and sailors for long hours to the rays of the sun, have a high rate of skin cancer (the lighter the skin, the greater the risk).

Some studies indicate that people who over-eat are more prone to the disease. At the University of California, research indicates that once cancer is present it grows faster in tense, emotional people than in placid, even-dispositioned souls.

In some large cities, cancer detection clinics have been set up. They examine only apparently

Civil Defense Plans Here Have Made Much Progress

The first lecture of a series "Aspects of Atomic Warfare," was presented in St. Mark's school hall, Thursday evening. This series is sponsored by Penna. State Nurses Ass'n.

Howard Boyd introduced the principal speaker, Burgess I. Johnston Hetherington. The latter presented Bristol's plan for civilian defense. He stated that Bristol was one of the first to present a real plan of action to the county. Through efforts of Howard Boyd and Clifford Hagerman, fire defense has been well organized.

Progress has been made under direction of J. S. Lynn to build up an emergency police force. Arrangements are being made under supervision of Dr. Thomas Fannin for first aid stations throughout the area.

Mr. Hetherington stated that the progress of the civil defense has been curtailed due to the need for financial assistance. He added there is also a great need for more publicity, training courses, and drills on a county and state-wide basis.

Miss Margaret Ewen, R. N., gave the principal objectives of the course.

Sgt. Joseph Major of the U. S. Army Recruiting Service, gave an interesting talk on the aspects of the atomic bomb. He explained the difference between conventional and atomic bombs. Sgt. Major also pointed out effects on individuals such as blast injuries, burns and radiation effect.

A film, "Operation Crossroads," was shown, depicting the explosion of the "A" bomb on Bikini Island.

Mr. Boyd announced that the film "Tale of Two Cities," will be presented, and "Nursing Functions in Atomic Disasters" will be discussed at the next session, May 6th.

DINNER TO OPEN FUND DRIVE FOR SCHOOL

$80,000 Structure To Be Erected for St. Andrew's School, Newtown

TO ACCOMMODATE 180

NEWTOWN, May 3 — With the "kick-off" dinner for $80,000 in funds for a new parochial school here scheduled for May 12, work of construction is expected to start soon a new brick and steel structure.

The dinner which will open the fund drive will take place in the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, N. J., May 12th, and this pledge-acceptance event will be followed up by regular payments over a six months period.

The plans are for a school to replace the present grade school of St. Andrew's R. C. parish. The four class-rooms planned in the one-story structure, will have accommodations for 180 pupils. The school, to be built on a lot 200 x 400 feet on Sycamore street, opposite St. Andrew's Church, is also to include a cafeteria and sanitary facilities.

Grades one to eight, inclusive, will be accommodated there, and it is expected that the present school may be razed.

The present structure has been outgrown, according to Thomas Lavelle, chairman of the fund drive. Serving as vice chairman is Joseph Trainer.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Although the Communist negotiators at the Korean truce negotiations have failed to accept the United Nations plan for an overall settlement of the issues outstanding, there were some indications that they were willing to discuss a counter-proposal of their own. There was a dearth of news from the secret sessions, but observers on the scene were hopeful that further talks would be fruitful.

Gen. Mark W. Clark, who is slated to succeed General Ridgway as commander of Allied troops in Korea, declared after a White House conference that he would "work hard for an honorable armistice" in Korea. He said he would leave soon for his new assignment.

The relations between the West German regime and Britain appeared to have taken a serious, perhaps critical, turn as the result of London's refusal to make further concessions to Bonn in the contractual agreement that sets forth the new relationship between Bonn and the Western Allies. The signing of that agreement had been hoped for by May 20 but the course of events of the last few days has tended to disrupt those hopes.

Reorganization of the North Atlantic Treaty Council into three major subsidiary sections is planned by General Lord Ismay, the groups first permanent Secre-

BABY BORN IN AMBULANCE

DEBATE OR PROPAGANDA

A television audience far in the millions last Thursday night watched the much-advertised joint appearance of various presidential candidates on a single platform.

It was the "Citizens View of '52," a show conducted by the National Convention of the League of Women Voters, in cooperation with the pro-Eisenhower Life Magazine, and sponsored by a well-known brand of cigarette.

The performance marked the highwater mark to date of the efforts in this country to merchandise politics as, for instance, deodorants and hair oils are merchandised—that is to say, "thought control" of the Nazi, Fascist and Communist type, streamlined, set to music, cheerleadered by professionals, and submitted to the public in the utterly fraudulent disguises of being impartial, spontaneous and objective.

To begin with, probably there ought to be a Federal law, with a heavy penalty attached, for anything in the way of a political show being called a "debate" unless at least two sides are represented.

The T-V shindig was referred to at least twice as being an airing of conflictory political doctrines at least as significant as the Lincoln-Douglas debates. Now, those two gentlemen took contrary sides on the great issue of that period, slavery, and argued the matter out. But the so-called debate on television found six men, three Democrats and three Republicans, who differed in their fundamental political concepts no more than Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

It might be observed also that the cigaret-show "debate" differed from the Lincoln-Douglas discussions in still another

The Only Details Are Those Given by Wounded Man En Route to Hospital

TELEPHONES FOR AID

Operator Notifies Employees At Nearby 'Gas' Station Of His Plight

TREVOSE, May 3 — A "gas" station attendant is in Nazareth Hospital, Phila., with a head wound as the result of a hold-up early today at the "gas" station of Bintliff Brothers, here. The bandits made a get-away with over $100 in cash and approximately 25 automobile tires.

The attendant, Richard Arbach, 21, Trevoise, is in Nazareth Hospital with a head wound requiring seven stitches. Details of the actual hold-up are lacking.

Arbach was alone, as the operator of the all-night service station. He was knocked unconscious but revived sufficiently to call the telephone operator. The operator in turn called Lee's service station, a distance up the road. Men at that station sent aid to Arbach. He was found unconscious and was rushed to the hospital.

Three Trevoise residents, Raymond Williams, William Loun and Anthony Del Guercio were at the Lee station at the time as was also George Kemp, who was in charge of the station. Williams, Loun and Del Guercio jumped into Williams' car and rushed to the Bintliff station. Upon arrival they found Arbach leaning against some shelving. He fell to the floor upon the trio's arrival. They took him to the hospital, and reviving somewhat en route Arbach told the trio that two men walked into the station and inquired the price of tires. Arbach turned his back to the two to consult the tire price chart when he was struck in the back of the head.

HOW TO SAVE "GAS"

That the average driver of an automobile is wasteful of gasoline has again been demonstrated by an automobile economy contest, this time from Los Angeles to Sun Valley, Idaho, a distance of more than 1,400 miles over all sorts of driving conditions, automobile industry spokesmen say.

With entries in the contests representing most of the leading makes of cars, the overall gasoline mileage was 50 per cent higher than the average driver obtains. Cars were strictly stock models, but tuned up to perfection.

What accounted for the increased gasoline mileage, those who participated in the contest agree, was driving technique. No lightning getaways were indulged in, cars were shifted into high at low speeds, and when it became necessary to slow up or stop this was done mainly by engine instead of foot braking.

Most wasteful practices commonly employed by automobile drivers are rapid acceleration and hard braking, experts agree. If pickup is gradual and slowdown ditto, there is a major saving in amount of gasoline consumed.

Great advances have been made by the automobile industry in recent years in designing automobiles that are more economical to operate and the oil industry has contributed to this trend by improvements in gasoline and lubricants. But no motorcar will deliver more than two-thirds of the gasoline mileage possible unless the man at the wheel knows how to drive economically, at the latest automobile economy contest has again demonstrated.

PACKAGING

Attractive packaging, at which Americans excel, is recognized as an important factor in modern salesmanship. This practice has gone so far that sometimes the wrapping for an Easter or Christmas present costs as much as the present itself.

This, of course, is where individual taste is exercised. Some shops charge extra for gift wrapping, which is understandable in view of the fact that design and redesign of products and packages costs American industry more than $100,000,000 a year. That is on the word of an industrial designer, Walter P. Margulies of New York.

Mr. Margulies points out that the reason design looms so large in modern merchandising is in the change in selling patterns, which leave the customer alone with what he or she wants to purchase. Asserts this designer:

"The expansion of the super market vending method and the accent on eye-appealing impulse sales means that products must bear a heavier load in selling. The sales task is losing its potency, mainly because there are fewer salespeople to make it."

Some sales tasks are pleasant, some not. It is certain that of two products of equal value and utility, the one with the more attractive design and packaging will have a great sales advantage.

Debate or Propaganda

respect, since the pre-Civil war discussions found two of the ablest and most accomplished spokesmen of the country personally taking part, whereas the T-V "clinic" was strictly a second-team performance. The Democrats lacked the presence of Truman, Acheson, Marshall, or any other first-string representative, while on the Republican side, neither of the two main contenders, Taft or Eisenhower, was present.

General Eisenhower was represented, in one sense, though not in another. Paul G. Hoffman, former Economic Cooperation Administrator, appeared on Eisenhower's behalf, but made it clear every time he spoke that what he said was not to be considered as committing the General in any way.

Others who took part on the alleged Republican side were Stassen and Warren, who had drifted farther and farther in the New Deal-Internationalist direction, until any resemblance to the Republican Party of the Lincoln-to-McKinley period is strictly coincidental.

The Democrats present were Harriman, Kerr and Kefauver, none of whom represents the White House-CIO combine which has been running the domestic front under Truman, or the Acheson-Marshall school which has been in charge of foreign affairs.

Two main questions were, as the moderator termed it, "debated" — that is to say, six separate statements were read with varying degrees of skill; first, on the subject of corruption in Federal government, and second, whether to increase or decrease foreign aid.

On the matter of corruption, several different versions were supplied of the tricky theory that "the man who offers a bribe is just as guilty as the man who takes it," a bit of perverted logic with which Mr. Truman and his confederates are trying to shove blame for bribery and corruption at Washington off their own shoulders and onto the laps of the American people.

A number of ingenious schemes were offered by which it was proposed painlessly to purify the government without the need for sending crooks to jail.

Not one of the six speakers talked with any serious realism about the actual situation in our national government, where the scion of a crooked political gang has put his cronies in posts of great temptation, and then stubbornly protected them from all criticism or prosecution when they proved unequal to the assignments.

As to foreign aid, the attitude fitted the hour of the television show, which had replaced one of the betterknown "giveaway" programs. The giveaway spirit of international diplomacy was applauded on all sides.

The exact question was whether to reduce the present level of foreign giveaways, and the various presidential hopefuls shaded their answers on the basis of whether to give all Mr. Truman has asked, or only most of it; but not a single breath of fresh air was let into the discussion by the suggestion that maybe after the handing out of billions of badly-needed American dollars without any progress towards world peace, it is time to take inventory of the idea itself, and see if something better is not available.

There was, in fact, only one way under the sun by which a debate could have been produced on the program, and that would have been to bring in the absent Senator Taft. He could have taken on any of the speakers, and probably backed him promptly off the boards.

But that wasn't the idea. The concept back of the program was to dress "internationalism" up in a "pro" and a "con" disguise, and try to sell it to the public, debate-wise, on a "heads we win, tails you lose" basis.

surances" that its workers would not walk out again. Several other companies were expected to follow the lead of Big Steel. Mr. Truman, hopeful of restoring full steel output as quickly as possible, will try to settle the wage dispute at a White House conference today to which company and union heads have been invited.

As both the White House and the steel companies took their dispute over the President's right to seize the steel plants to the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, in another 5-to-4 opinion, ruled that there was "at least a serious question as to the correctness" of the decision that seizure was illegal.

Price Stabilization Director Arnull renewed his opposition to giving the steel companies an increase of more than $3 a ton in the price of steel to compensate them for higher labor costs.

ELLIOTT PITCHES BENSALEM HIGH TO THIRD WIN

Three hit pitching by Ron Elliott gave Bensalem Township its third win of the Lower Bucks County League yesterday afternoon as the Owls were victorious over Delhaas High, 7-2. Bensalem has been beaten but once in league competition.

Elliott gave up a hit in the initial frame and then held Delhaas hitless until it bunched two in the seventh for its lone marker of the contest. The Bensalem twirler had six strikeouts.

Bensalem had 12 hits with Russ Struble getting a pair, including a home run in the sixth. Crowthers had a triple and single. On his triple, he would have had a homer but he stumbled over third.

Don Heany hit a long drive for Bensalem in his first appearance at the plate in an Owl's uniform. The Sophomore circled the bases, scoring Jim Welsh ahead of him, but was declared out for failing to touch third base. He was credited with a two-bagger.

As the ultimate winner of the Junior High P. I. A. A. Junior High School Half-mile Relay Championship is based on the best time of the teams running in the five heats, Delhaas finished ninth of the 26 schools competing.

The relay team of Delhaas was made up of James Rappo, Theodore Cahoon, Donald Whyatt, and Robert DeChico. John Brown was the alternate.

BRISTOL RALLIES IN LAST FRAME; BULLDOGS LOSE

MORRISVILLE, May 3 — Bristol rallied in the last two innings to register a Lower Bucks County League triumph over Morrisville High on the Robert Morris field yesterday. Final score was 7-2. It was Bristol's third win against two losses as the Warriors were beaten by Pennsbury 9-7, earlier in the week.

Norman Slaymaker went the distance for Coach Ben Watson's team and allowed Morrisville five hits. Two of these, a home run and triple, went to Lebegern. Slaymaker fanned nine batters, including the side in the sixth. The Bristol twirler had good control, giving up two passes. Slaymaker helped his own cause by singling in the sixth and seventh, the Bristol rally frames.

Ercle Petrizz whanged out a triple in the third and single in the sixth.

Risk of Getting Cancer is 20 Percent

healthy people. One out of a hundred, as a general rule, turns out to have cancer.

There are times when breast cancer seems to run in families, but science is positive cancer is not inherited. What is inherited is a predisposition to the disease, but that is not so formidable a statement as it seems. Doctors think a great majority of people are pre-disposed to cancer — that is, they can get the disease.

Given that pre-disposition, however, there is something that has to do with the disease itself. Something has to start it going.

That something can be an irritant. Science explains this in an interesting way. An irritation is, in effect, a microscopic bruise. When the skin is cut or bruised, normal cells grow in to form new tissue, replacing the injured tissue.

But cancer cells, it is known, grow faster than normal cells. Thus, when the chance for growth presents itself, that may be all the cancer cells need.

Science likes to look back into childhood to see whether the diseases of infancy or childhood play any part in the development of cancer later on. But sometimes — indeed, often — cancer takes from twenty to fifty years to grow where it can be noticed. It is hard to trace back that many years and figure out what started it.

A survey is being taken among thousands of people to see whether there is any relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. Lip cancer has been found among pipe smokers, but it also has been found among non-smokers.

Some forms of cancer may be attributed to the simple human process of just plain growing old. That may be why there seem to be more cases of cancer today than in former years — because there are more old people today. They live longer, and thus have more time in which to contract the disease.

It can be assumed, however, that the cause of cancer — and thence means for its prevention — will be found in men, the most important area of the body, for purposes of cancer research, can be found in the vicinity of the hip pocket, where the wallet is.

The fight against cancer can be shortened in direct ratio to how many people join the fight against it. The more money, the more people. Funds can be directed to any official local cancer organization, or national bodies like the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund and American Cancer Society.

Somebody's odd dollar bill is going to knock cancer out.

females were 18. Only one bridegroom-to-be was 19; while eleven of the brides were 19. The 20 age group claimed eight men and six women.

Eleven of the male applicants and fourteen of the females had previously been married and were divorced. There were eight widowers and six widows among the group taking a second trip to the altar.

Applicants came from as far away as California and Indiana.

The youngest couples was a 17 year old serviceman from Forest Grove, who applied for a license to wed a 16 year old Rushland girl. Another young couple came from Doylestown; the fellow being 17 and the girl 18. Quakertown sent a couple, both of whom were 18 years old.

There was only one couple claiming the title for oldest couple of the month. They came from Upper Makefield; the bridegroom was 69 year old and married a women 67.

Lower Bucks — Bristol residents are urged to try to make this area campaign the finest that has yet been held. The date of the "clean-up" drive is May 3 to 17th. The local Chamber of Commerce has entered the Lower Bucks — Bristol area in the National Contest sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce, for which awards are made by them to the communities in the United States conducting the best campaign and achieving the finest results. As in past years, local awards will be made by the Lower Bucks — Bristol Chamber of Commerce to streets doing the best job of making their area look well. Francis J. O'Boyle and Kenneth Anderson have been the chairmen for this campaign and they have received the able assistance of many committee members, and the newly organized Junior Chamber of Commerce.

the night of Sept. 1, 1950, found Mrs. Roberta Mary Cook, wife of the defendant, crouched in the car of David.

Awgils opened the car door and on the front seat, he said, sitting on the right hand side and trying to crouch below the exposure of the glass on the left-hand side of the vehicle, was Mrs. Cook, mother of four children, and wife of the defendant. The Cooks had three children and the fourth was born since the tragedy at the plant.

Harry C. Crosby, 39, McKinley st., Bristol, a friend of the defendant, testified that Cook told him he was having trouble with his wife. "He told me that he was to meet the other man and his wife and that he would see me later that night."

After the shooting incident at the plant, Crosby said Cook went back to Sottung's Cafe, Croydon and said: "The 'little trouble' is over," and we were talking when the sirens sounded and I asked Cook "Ed, is that for you?"

Crosby testified "Cook came to my house and asked me to take a little ride with him. He had a coupe outside and asked me if I had a gun. I went out with Cook and we drove to Mill street where we stopped. Cook went into some building. He told me he was going to buy a gun. He returned and told me he couldn't get a gun there unless he waited. We left and went somewhere on Radcliffe street where he left the car again. After several minutes Cook came back to the car and we drove home. He asked me to lend him some clothes. He washed up and I gave him a shirt and sport coat."

"We had coffee together and he took me to a doctor about eight o'clock. We used the same car."

The Commonwealth at this point offered in evidence a solid color tan sports coat which Crosby identified as one of his garments.

"We had coffee together and he took me to a doctor about eight o'clock. We used the same car."

Later I met him and we had a drink together at the Bristol House on Mill street.

"Cook got a gun, which he borrowed from someone. He did not tell me from whom he got the gun. He showed the gun to me and might have said, 'I got a gun.' It was an automatic pistol."

An automatic pistol, offered by the Commonwealth, resembled the weapon Cook got that afternoon, the witness said.

"We went to another place, Keller's, and had another drink. I had another beer."

"We walked down back Mill street and went to another bar and I had another beer. I can't remember whether Cook drank his drink or not."

"We went to Sottung's cafe, near Croydon. Sottung's Cafe is several minutes drive from the Seaboard Container Corp. plant."

"I never saw the gun after Cook showed it to me and we never discussed the gun."

"Did you make any effort to procure bullets?" asked District Attorney Willard S. Curtin.

"Cook ordered a whiskey at Sottung's. He told me he had a little trouble with his wife and another man. I never knew the man's name. He wanted to meet me after the 'little trouble' was over. He told me he was to meet his wife and the other man."

"About 10:30 he came back and we went to the other end of the bar. When I heard a siren, I asked him, 'Is that for you, Ed?'"

"I guess it is," Cook answered. "We walked out and got into the car and he said he would take me home. I asked him 'Did you shoot him?' I just can't remember what was said. I took the gun and put it under the seat. The gun was in Cook's coat pocket. I think Cook was wearing the coat at the time."

"He mentioned something about not taking the gun and I said 'It can't hurt me.' He was going to take me home and I said 'I will stay with you.' He said something about getting drunk before giving himself up."

"We went to several taprooms after leaving Sottung's and one which was in New Jersey."

"I think he said something about not hurting the fellow much. He got sleepy and I drove home. I made a 'phone call to his wife."

"Cook was asleep in the car and I drove to a fire house. Leonard Dennis and Laurence Huffnel were at the fire house. Dennis is a brother-in-law of Cook. We went to the police station in the municipal building. I took the coat and gun in the pocket and handed it over to the police. I put the gun back into the coat pocket."

"Cook walked with me into the police station," said Crosby.

"I never saw Wilfred David in my life. I knew Mrs. Cook, but I did not see either of them that night."

Minot J. Hill, Jr., 227 Mill street, Bristol, testified the pistol looked very much like the one he gave to Mr. Cook. "Cook said he wanted to enter some shooting match and he needed a pistol. I knew

Dr. William S. Wadsworth, coroner's physician of Philadelphia, said: "There were a great many infections, following an injury to the spinal cord, on Wilfred David's body. Death was caused by result of injuries to the spinal cord."

Joseph W. Verdi, 26, Seaboard Container plant shipper, who was working Sept. 1, said David was the night superintendent. "Cook approached me about 10:15 that night and asked if I knew David. I told Cook he wasn't allowed in the plant and would have to get out. Later I saw the ambulance pull away."

Joseph Kelly, 40, Bridgeton, N. J., truck driver, testified he saw Cook at the Seaboard Container plant. "I heard a noise and the other driver said it looks as if a man has been shot. I saw a man lying inside the door of the loading platform. Cook passed me coming down the steps. Cook picked up David's head and said something to him. Then Cook walked away and headed over a grass plot and several minutes later a car shot out to the main road."

Joseph Menna, 36, Phila., foreman shipper, S. C. Co., said he ordered Cook to leave the premises a week previous to Sept. 1, 1950. "On Sept. 1 Cook came into my office and told me David wanted to see me outside. It was very important," said Menna.

"I ran down and put my hand under David's head and he said, 'I'm sick, please get me a doctor.' He kept repeating, 'I can't move my legs, I'm sick.'"

Eli H. Fradkin, plant superintendent, said he was in the office when Cook came in and asked for Menna.

"Mrs. Cook worked there too but I don't know how long. I think she quit a week earlier."

Vincent Farragall, Bristol policeman, who was on night duty at Bristol police headquarters, testified he saw Cook at 5:15 Sept. 2. "Mr. Crosby, who had a jacket in his hand, and Cook came into the police headquarters. Crosby said the gun is in the pocket."

Chief of Police Joseph O. Seader, Bristol township, also saw Cook Sept. 2 at 5:30 in the morning, and interviewed Crosby.

Trooper Emil Awgils, Langhorne, Penna. State Police, testified Charles Cohen gave him a spent cartridge case at the scene of the shooting. There were seven cartridges in the clip of the automatic. Six were offered in evidence. One was in the chamber.

"Cook told me July 23 it was a foolish thing to shoot David," Trooper Awgils said. The car was owned by Sadie Fenton, of Bristol, an aunt of the defendant.

Chief County Detective Fred H. Kohler testified about receiving the spent cartridge and slug.

Trooper Edward T. Miles, of the State Police, aided in the investigation.

Cpl. Charles A. Jones, Langhorne State Police, identified the slug taken from David's body.

Assistant County Detective William L. Stackhouse testified Dr. Martin Cassett, Gloucester, N. J., refused to attend because of advice of his attorney. Charles T. Cohen did not attend court either.

Lieut. Lewis M. Whitecotton, of the State Police crime laboratory, ballistics expert, described the pistol as auto-loading rather than automatic since it fires only when the trigger is pulled each time. It is a .32 calibre. He testified the slug, or pellet, found in David's body was fired from the pistol found on Cook. It has a firing capacity of nine bullets.

Rudolph David, Gloucester City, N. J., father of Wilfred David, taking the witness stand Thursday morning, as the first witness, said he took care of his son in an apartment in the same building.

"My son returned to Jefferson Hospital, Feb. 16, 1951, because we could no longer take care of him."

"I ran down and put my hand under David's head and he said, 'I'm sick, please get me a
